this thorough revision of the highly successful first edition of life span development offers the reader a wide ranging and thought provoking account of human development throughout the lifespan the lifespan approach emphasises that development does not stop when we cease to be adolescents but goes on throughout adulthood and into old age in initial chapters leonie sugarman outlines the issues surrounding the notion of development and how it can be studied including reviews of the work of key theorists erikson levinson and Gould she goes on to consider the different ways in which the life course can be construed as a series of age related stages as a cumulative sequence as a series of developmental tasks as a series of key life events and transitions or as a narrative construction which creates a sense of dynamic continuity a final chapter looks at how people cope the resources that are available and the theoretical and practical issues regarding interventions to assist them in the process new to this edition is increased coverage of the topical issue of successful ageing and a new chapter on the increasingly popular narrative approach to lifespan development this edition is also more student friendly with exercises in self reflection that encourage the reader to look at the development of their own lives or those of their current or future clients boxed material highlighting major theories and clarifying concepts is also included this book will be invaluable for students of developmental and occupational psychology and professionals in the fields of health management education and social work this volume continues the tradition of the life span development series presenting overviews of research programs on a variety of developmental topics research and theory in life span development have given increased attention to the issues of constancy and change in human development and to the opportunities for and constraints on plasticity in structure and function across life acknowledging the need for and existence of interconnection between age and developmental periods it focuses on conditions for possibly discontinuous development that emerge at later periods contributors to this series are sensitive to the restrictive consequences of studying only specific age periods such as old age infancy or adolescence each scholar attempts to relate the facts about one age group to similar facts about other age groups and to move toward the study of transformation of characteristics and processes over the life span life span development psychology research and theory covers the issues and problems associated with a life span conceptualization of developmental psychology the book discusses the status issues and antecedents of life span developmental psychology an approach to theory construction in the psychology of development and aging and models and theories of development the text also describes the methodology and research strategy in the study of developmental change the application of multivariate strategies to problems of measuring and structuring long term change and the mechanisms required for the operation of perception and recognition learning and retention language and intellectual abilities are also considered developmental psychologists will find the study invaluable the final volume in this significant series this publication mirrors the broad scientific attention given to ideas and issues associated with the life span perspective constancy and change in human development opportunities for and constraints on plasticity in structure and function across life the potential for intervention across the entire life course and thus for the creation of an applied developmental science individual differences diversity in life paths in contexts or the ecology of human development and in changing relations between people and contexts interconnections and discontinuities across age levels and developmental periods and the importance of integrating biological psychological social cultural and historical levels of organization in order to understand human development although there has been a significant increase in studies of stress and coping processes in recent years researchers have often approached these topics from rather narrow and constrained perspectives furthermore little communication has occurred across disciplines and research directions resulting in the emergence of several relatively isolated literatures an outgrowth of the eleventh biennial west virginia university conference on life span development this volume emphasizes two major themes the importance of taking a life span approach to the study of stress and coping and the development of new and more complete conceptual models of stress and coping processes the first to approach these subjects from a life span perspective this book includes papers by distinguished researchers from each of the major periods of the life span and brings together the cognitive and socioemotional traditions in the study of dealing with pressures the editors hope that this facilitation of communication among researchers with diverse views will help create a broadening and integration of perspectives this interdisciplinary volume presents international research and theories focusing on the development of the individual across the life span centering on family as the key context influencing and being influenced by the developing person the contributors to this volume discuss an array of theoretical models methodological strategies and substantive foci linking the study of individual development the family system and the broader context of human development the volume presents continuing empirical research and theories in the realm of individual and family development and features a developmental contextual view from a process oriented vantage point the entire lifespan in 500 pages what s the greatest challenge in teaching the life span development course covering a lifetime of material in a single term instructors from across the country have clamored for a streamlined text that captures the core concepts of life span development essentials of life span development was carefully designed and constructed to deliver these core concepts along with a strong applications focus reflecting the broad range of interests and backgrounds of students taking this course and as always with John Santrock's texts the latest research in the field is incorporated throughout

What are the changes we see over the life span? How can we explain them? And how do we account for individual differences? This volume continues to examine these questions and to report advances in empirical research within life span development, increasing its interdisciplinary nature. The relationships between individual development, social context, and historical change are salient issues discussed in this volume, as are nonnormative and atypical events contributing to life span change.

An introductory text that tackles controversial issues in an accessible way and which will be of interest to psychologists across a range of fields.
