much effort in recent philosophy has been devoted to attacking the metaphysics of the subject identified largely with french post structuralist thought yet stemming primarily from the influential work of the later heidegger this attack has taken the form of a sweeping denunciation of the whole tradition of modern philosophy from descartes through nietzsche husserl and existentialism in this timely study david carr contends that this discussion has overlooked and eventually lost sight of the distinction between modern metaphysics and the tradition of transcendental philosophy inaugurated by kant and continued by husserl into the twentieth century carr maintains that the transcendental tradition often misinterpreted as a mere alternative version of the metaphysics of the subject is in fact itself directed against such a metaphysics challenging prevailing views of the development of modern philosophy carr proposes a reinterpretation of the transcendental tradition and counters heidegger s influential readings of kant and husserl he defends their subtle and complex transcendental investigations of the self and the life of subjectivity in carr s interpretation far from joining the project of metaphysical foundationalism transcendental philosophy offers epistemological critique and phenomenological description its aim is not metaphysical conclusions but rather an appreciation for the rich and sometimes contradictory character of experience the transcendental approach to the self is skillfully summed up by husserl as the paradox of human subjectivity being a subject for the world and at the same time being an object in the world proposing striking new readings of kant and husserl and reviving a sound awareness of the transcendental tradition carr s distinctive historical and systematic position will interest a wide range of readers and provoke discussion among philosophers of metaphysics epistemology and the history of philosophy david hume bridges a gap between classical and non classical philosophy two major approaches in 20th century systematic philosophy naturalism and relativism have both basically been inspired by hume and create the most controversy nowadays the dethroning of the knowing agent and the spiritual substance from their privileged place opens way to the death of god f nietzsche or the death of the author r barthes hume s criticism of causality corresponds to the indeterminism of the quantum mechanics b russell k popper s falsificationism would hardly be possible without hume s account of induction l wittgenstein s considerations on rule following reveal similarities with hume s idea of habit s kripke as well as with p bourdieu s concept of habitus d bloor likes to think of Hume as Edinburgh's great sociologist of knowledge the present collection is not a mere contribution to the history of philosophy though it covers many problems of contemporary Humean scholarship and contains articles written by leading researchers in the field Braund, Harre, J. Bricke etc its aim rather is to demonstrate the vivacity of Hume for contemporary philosophy the authors' considerations range from the subtlest questions of the development of his thought and its impact on the contemporary to the most recent and controversial topics in epistemology philosophy of science political theory and ethics this book reads representations of western music in literary texts to reveal the ways in which artifacts of imperial culture function within contemporary world literature Bushnell argues that western music's conventions for performance composition and listening established during the colonial period persist in postcolonial thought and practice music from the baroque classical and romantic periods Bach through Brahms coincides with the rise of colonialism and western music contains imperial attitudes and values embedded within its conventions standards and rules the book focuses on the culture of classical music as reflected in the worlds of characters and texts and contends that its effects outlast the historical significance of the real composers pieces styles and forms through examples by authors such as McEwan Vikram Seth Bernard MacLaverty Chang Rae Lee and J. M. Coetzee the book demonstrates how western music enters narrative as both acts of history and as structures of analogy that suggest subject positions human relations and political activity that in turn describes a postcolonial condition the uses to which western music is put in each literary text reveals how European art music of the seventeenth through the nineteenth centuries is read and misread by postcolonial generations exposing mostly hidden cultural structures that influence our contemporary understandings of social relations and hierarchies norms for resolution and for assigning significance and standards of propriety the book presents strategies for thinking anew about the persistence of cultural imperialism reading western music simultaneously as representative of imperial cultural dominance and as suggestive of resistant structures forms and practices that challenge the imperial hegemony the oneiric in the films of David Lynch is the first systematic book length study to explore the nature and function of dreams in David Lynch's different phases and audio visual formats there is hardly a contemporary film director whose name is as closely linked to the dream like as that of David Lynch both popular and academic discourse frequently identify Lynch's films by their dreamlike qualities however in the existing literature on Lynch these qualities tend to remain underspecified in terms of their experiential dimension departing from an interest in the phenomenon of dream experience this is the first systematic book length study exploring the nature and function of the oneiric in the director's different phases and audio visual formats it shows that over the course of 50 years Lynch has developed a cinematic aesthetics of the oneiric an ensemble of four dream related dimensions that unfolds its full potential in the dynamic interplay between sensory address and reflective medialization on the one hand the Lynchian oneiric presents a markedly sensory perceptual mode of experience both characters and viewers are challenged in their perceptual patterns while at the same time being immersed in the material dream scenario on the other hand the Lynchian oneiric provides a mode of both psychological and medial reflection not only the characters but the films themselves are inclined to turn back on themselves in a dream exploring the preconditions possibilities and limitations of their own existence and ability to know the world the oneiric in Lynch's films is thus of phenomenological media theoretical and philosophical interest a clarifying examination of Gilles Deleuze's first book shows how he would later transform the problem of immanence into the problem of difference despite the wide reception gilles deleuze has received across the humanities research on his early work has remained scant experience and empiricism remedies that gap with a detailed study of deleuze s first book empiricism and subjectivity which is devoted to the philosophical project of david hume russell ford argues that this work is poorly understood when read simply as a stand alone study on hume its significance only becomes apparent within the context of a larger problematic that dominated and continues to inform modern european philosophy the conceptual constitution of a purely immanent account of existence while the importance of this debate is recognized in contemporary scholarship its genealogy including deleuze s place within it has been underappreciated this book shows how deleuze directly engages in an ongoing debate between his teachers jean wahl and jean hyppolite over experience and empiricism an intervention that restages the famous encounter between rationalism and empiricism that yielded kant s critical philosophy what deleuze effectively asks might have happened had hume been the one roused from his empirical dogmatic slumber by the rationalist challenge of kant
